Darling Maggie — Have not received your letter yet but will start one in reply and finish it in the morning. It has snowed here nearly all day and is very cold. Have had all three business going in the office all day. Am not running the fires at the house at all until after supper.
I spend the days in the office and the evenings out house — upstairs, where I only need the gas stove.

Mr Nunn is sick
again and I had Bottorf in consultation this morning and we are trying his plan of treatment but I don't hold much hopes for his recovery.

Opal Swan is making a nice recovery. Mr Rice came in and paid up his account yesterday. Dean Irwin paid up his long overdue $5.00 today. So all in all, business is holding up pretty well.

I think that is all the news about business which is all the news I have. It sure certainly is not home without you, Margie. Strange to say, I have scarcely thought of little Anne. She is not a habit like you are as yet.

I hope you are enjoying your visit with your folks and that they are all enjoying you - you are not going back again in the winter time.

Louise's nose seems twice as acute in weather like this. Of course, Pick is better than nothing for company but he comes a long way from being a good substitute for a wife. I have to ask him to sleep with me, but before morning he is trying his best to get under the covers with me. The house is ungodly cold in the morning. I wake up at 6:30 and turn on the gas. By eight o'clock it is almost warm.

Now, Maggie, I'll
swager half the guests at that party of M.E.'s have colds - Don't let them gaw over the kid,
and cough over her.

Am going out now to shovel the snow off the walks - good night Maggie - Will finish in the morning.

A.M. Just received your very welcome letter, sweetheart.
Terribly sorry to hear about your Dad and do hope it is not as bad as it sounds or as bad as he thinks it is.

It gave me quite a thrill when I read that my daughter sent her love - also of course when you sent yours - I don't yet fully realize that I have a young man.

The mouse I saw when I called you Monday night is now dead. Pick and I have it to eat from the kitchen cabinet this A.M. The cold water in kitchen froze up last night. But I thawed
it out this morning.
If you don't call me this morning I am going to call you and will decide when I shall come for you. Now if we decide to come home Saturday morning we must leave right after the first morning feeding.

Business has been nil this A.M. but it may pick up later in the day. We had about three inches of snow last night, but it is slightly warmer today - not thawing, however.

Got a very nice letter from Dr. Hauss this morning wondering about your condition and advising your return to him. I'll write him today.

Give my regards and

love to your folks - I hope to see you all soon -

Be careful on your trip to Kingtonwa.

all my love to you
and our daughter, Ann.

yours, Ted

I'll bring Ann's leopard skin blanket with me when I come.
